THE TENTH ANNUAL CARDIO- VASCULAR TEAM SYMPOSIUM 2017

Friday, June 2, 2017
9 a.m. – 5:30 p.m.

The Inn on The Lake
770 South Main Street
Canandaigua, NY

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION AND TARGET AUDIENCE

The Tenth Annual Cardiovascular Team Symposium, presented by The New York Cardiological Society, is a unique academic event designed to enhance current knowledge about the etiology, prevention, intervention and management of cardiovascular disease. Presentations will provide cardiovascular team members with evidence-based approaches to the treatment and care of the cardiac patient and information regarding current and new cutting-edge technologies. The target audience includes nurse practitioners, physician assistants, nurses, physicians and all members of the cardiovascular team.

NEEDS STATEMENT

Demand for cardiac care continues to increase due to the aging population, the obesity epidemic and the persistent incidence of cardiovascular disease in the population. At present, CVD is still by far the most common diagnosis among all hospital discharges in the United States. Chronic disease will become an important component of cardiology practice and care teams, consisting of nurses, nurse practitioners, physician assistants, pharmacists and physicians, and will provide the most efficient means of providing ongoing care and long-term follow-up and management of cardiovascular patients. The Symposium will address many relevant topics, including how to harness the assets of the ACC to optimize the quality of one's practice, the diagnosis and assessment of diastolic dysfunction/heart failure, the diagnosis and monitoring of various infiltrative cardiomyopathies, plant-based diets for cardiovascular health, rate-versus-rhythm control strategies for atrial fibrillation, appropriate use of anticoagulation, evaluation of candidates for TAVR, and ways to risk stratify patients with evidence of peripheral disease. There will also be ample time for Q&A and discussion.

GOALS STATEMENT

The overall goal of this activity is to improve patient care by increasing learner knowledge and competence.

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

At the completion of the Symposium, learners will be able to :

- Identify at least one educational product or program that will help address a knowledge gap within their practice
- Describe performance improvement products available through the ACC
- Recognize, diagnose and assess diastolic dysfunction/heart failure
- Explain prognosis of, and treatment options for, diastolic heart failure
- Describe how cardiac MRI can be used to diagnose various infiltrative cardiomyopathies
- Discuss how imaging can be used to monitor patients during treatment for infiltrative cardiomyopathy
- Describe the evidence behind, and successes of, plant-based diets for cardiovascular health
- Name several strategies to implement plant-based eating into their lives and ways to make recommendations for patients
- Explain the rationale for, and details of, rate vs. rhythm control strategies for atrial fibrillation
- Assess stroke risk and the appropriate use of anticoagulation
- Describe intermediate risk candidacy and how this may increase the number of TAVR procedures performed
- Identify candidates within their own practices who may qualify for evaluation for TAVR
- Describe how to utilize diagnostic tools within your practice to better assess presence of vascular disease
